Team ID
Project Name	Credit Card Approval Prediction
Maximum Marks	4 Marks

The journey below maps the experience of an applicant checking and applying for credit card approval through the platform, from initial awareness to receiving a decision.

Stage	Awareness	Consideration	Application	Decision	Post-Decision
Action	Learns about self-service eligibility check via bank website	Explores the web app, reviews what information is required	Enters income, employment, credit history details and submits	Views instant approval / rejection prediction with risk category	Proceeds with formal application, or reviews reasons for rejection
Thinking	"Can I check my eligibility before applying?"	"Is this quick and easy to use?"	"I hope my details are accurate and secure"	"Will I actually get approved?"	"What can I do to improve my chances next time?"
Feeling	Curious	Cautiously optimistic	Slightly anxious	Relieved / Disappointed	Informed and in control
Touchpoint	Bank website / advertisement	Web application landing page	Application form (Flask web app)	Prediction result screen	Result summary / follow-up email
Pain Point	Unaware such a tool exists	Unsure what data is needed	Worried about data privacy	No explanation for rejection	No clear next steps if rejected
Opportunity	Promote self-service checker prominently	Show a short "what you'll need" checklist	Display a privacy assurance note	Show key factors influencing the decision	Suggest ways to improve eligibility

Key Insights

✔ What Works Well

- Instant results remove long waiting times
- Simple form reduces friction versus paper applications
- Clear risk category helps set expectations

⚠ Where Friction Exists

- Users unsure which fields impact the outcome most
- Lack of transparency on why an application was rejected
- No guided path for re-applying after improving finances
